Editor's Notes

Was' up, y'all? Last issue I said I'd be one week late, and I was. Of course, the most important aspect of that notice is that I'm right back on time where I said I'd be, so that means I'm still battin' a thousand. No abrupt MIA periods with CROWE baby, no way! Still, I might end up back three weeks from now, and not the two weeks I'd like. I still reckon I'm doin' OK; this is issue number SEVEN. Woo! I am sorry there's no big regular cartoon this issue, either. I'm struggling with this small format somewhat. But I figure that there is no sense in expanding into more pages until I can do so from a position of strength. I'd rather be a little small, yet still be able to reach a lot of people. I do one good funny story—boom—make people laugh, and that's a successful enterprise for me right now. In the same way I put Big John Ritson on a past cover because he's giving the proceeds from his book to charity, I was happy to do a favour for Shear Madness Inc. As I said with Mr. Ritson, people who help their fellow man will always get the front page with me—I'll leave the tired old pics of Pamela Anderson-Whatever for the other guys. Maybe that's not the road to becoming R-I-C-H, but it is the road to being R E A L, and that's where CROWE goes, even if we do have to worry about money. Sid

Oh yeah, Pete asked me to squueeze this in, so here goes...

TOP TEN GRIPES OF A SANDWICH ARTIST

Above: Former Sandwich Artist Mel. B. suffers a devastating attack from another stressed-out employee. The attack influenced her decision to pursue "other projects." Security photo.

- 10: When I ask if you want cheese, don't list off your whole damn order.
- 9: When I've finished your sub, have my gloves off.....and you order another sub!
- 8: People who leave garbage on the table and leave—you people disgust me.
- 7: Washrooms are for customers. If you use it, say please and thanks. And stop clogging the toilet.
- 6: When I run out of specialty bread, don't get pissed because I ran out. It takes two hours to bake from start to finish.
- 5: After we close, don't bang on the door because we're not going to let you in.
- 4: If I forget to give you stamps, don't get mad at me, you should have asked, and don't bother asking for the stamps from your last visit, because you won't get them.
- 3: People who tell me their life story when ordering: A-I have my own life. B-I don't care about yours.
- 2: People from other stores who are covering a shift rearranging the store to look like theirs.
- 1: Nothing on the menu is regular. Never was, never will be. So stop asking for a regular sub, on regular bread!
